This week

Dear parents/carers and children,

We have been getting to work on our new topic this week which is linked to caring for and improving the local environment. We have been developing ideas for some environmental art inspired by an artist called Andy Goldsworthy- this will involve making art out of natural resources we can find. We have also started some geography/DT work- the pupils were keen to identify birds we find locally and then see if we can attract more to the downstairs garden by making recycled bird feeders- on Wednesday we did a mini birdwatch to see the birds we could find. Please see overleaf for this week's homework linked to the topic.

Everyone has been absolutely flying with their maths this week- both myself and Mr Monks are pleased with the effort and learning that we are seeing!

Have a good bank holiday weekend!

Mr. Smith

HOMEWORK

Daily reading with your child

I would like to have a maths focus for the homework for a few weeks- please could pupils complete their Mathematics activities by Wednesday- passwords were attached to the newsletters last week (if you don't have access to the internet, please talk to me and we can organise for your child to spend some time before or after school on the activities). Please could you complete between 3 and 5 activities set this week (last week there were more activities set for use in class...well done to those that completed lots!)

Year 6 pupils: please complete the practice papers we are sending home- we will go through the homework together so if there is anything you are unsure about we can talk through it next week.

For our environmental art work, if pupils would like to bring in natural things such as pebbles, shells, feathers etc they will be more than welcome. Linked to making bird feeders for DT, if pupils could bring in small plastic bottles or small plastic milk bottles that would be great.

This week's photos

No new photos yet this week! This week's photos are from last week's Easter Egg Hunt and Cream Tea- thanks to the FOPs for organising the afternoon!
